The town officials have thrown the key of the village into the river and expect you to come and entertain and be entertained by the many others who come for that purpose. Canadians Make More Telephone Calls Than Any Other People

Canadians make more telephone calls than the people of any other country.

The latest figures, compiled from official sources by the Bell System as of January 1, 1935, and made public recently, show that 213.4 telephone conversations were held in Canada for every man, woman and child in this Dominion.

This record is approached only by the United States where the comparable figure for the year was 192.4. It is a matter of interest that Denmark with 167.3 and Sweden with 144.6 conversations per capita were next in the line among the largest telephone-using countries of the world.

Canada's outstanding telephone development in the larger centers is a feature of the statistics presented in this world-wide telephone survey. With 18.99 telephones per 100 population in communities of 50,000 and more, Canada ranks fifth, with the United States in sixth place in the list. Sweden, which has a comparable development of 23.13 telephones in first, followed by Switzerland with 19.76. Norway is third with 19.26 and Denmark fourth with 19.07 telephones per hundred inhabitants in the larger cities.

Painfully Injured When Attacked By Dog

Mrs. J. A. House, 8 Adam Street, St. Catharines, received painful injuries to both arms on Saturday afternoon at a farm house on No. 5 highway, about two miles west of the town, when she was attacked by a vicious dog. Forced to stop when her car radiator boiled over she went to the nearest house for water and as she was crossing the yard she was attacked by a big police dog which tore her coat and dress, while the wounds inflicted to her arms required 7 stitches in one arm and 5 in the other, to close. Dr. J. H. MacMillan attended. The dog was the property of Garrett Hall, and was kept for chicken thieves.

COURT OF REVISION HEARS APPEALS

Some Assessments Sustained While Others Lowered — Further Meeting Friday To Dispose of Those Laid Over For Consideration.

The Court of Revision to hear appeals against the assessment in the town of Grimsby met on Thursday evening last. Mayor Lewis presided, other members of the court being Reeve Mogg and Councillors Lethian, Chivers and Bourne.

No change was made in assessment in a number of cases while in others the assessment was reduced. Several appeals were laid over for consideration.

The appeals entered by Miss Testel, Clark and Terryberry, N. A. Penfold and Lake Lodge School were laid over for further consideration.

Miss Testel desired a reduction in assessment on Main Street property because of the fact that it was vacant for seven months in the year while Clark and Terryberry desired an allowance because part of property at Imperial Oil Station was unused. N. A. Penfold objected to an increase in his assessment when it had previously been lowered while an appeal was also entered by Lake Lodge School regarding assessment of property.

The appeal of Niagara Packers with reference to being assessed for both business and income tax was referred to the town's solicitors, Seymour and Lampard, to secure ruling as to the Act covering matter.

The assessments in the case of the following properties was confirmed by the court: Mrs. Godden, Elizabeth and Adelaide streets, Dr. Armstrong, Main Street, E. W. J. Webb, 76 Ontario street and A. P. Henry, 5 and 7 John Street.

The assessment on the Agnes Walker property known as lot No. 26, Corporation Plan, No. 4, Korman Avenue, was reduced from $475 to $400.

The assessment on the buildings on property of B. E. Laidman was reduced by $600, making assessment on buildings $2000, a barn having recently been removed from the property.

AWAY BACK WHEN

By FRANK FAIRBORN, JR.

I have been asked by several people during the past few weeks, mostly newcomers to the district, innumerable questions regarding the late John Hewitt. To answer these questions properly I reprint here an article I wrote at the time of Mr. Hewitt's death, Thanksgiving Day, October 8th, 1919.

The late John Hewitt was the third son of Thomas Hewitt, and was born in Grimsby Township on October 23, 1842, and spent the early part of his life in this locality. From his very earliest childhood he exhibited a remarkable capacity for business which grew and developed with age and through his life had handled many big schemes and shown an unusual business acumen. Mr. Hewitt amassed a large fortune and died a very wealthy man.

Mr. Hewitt's first business venture was when he spent six months in learning the trade of carpenter; but from this line of business he turned to that of odditory and soon opened a shop of his own in Grimsby Village, in a building where the Hotel Grimsby now stands. At the age of about twenty years he gave up this line and went to Toronto where he engaged with the Tremaine Map Company, and later compiled maps of the different counties of Ontario, himself and had been published by the Tremaine people.

From Toronto Mr. Hewitt proceeded to Chicago and engaged in wholesale and retail merchandising and later turned to real estate. From Chicago he went to Pittsburg where he manufactured and from there crimping irons and other lines of goods of a like nature. In this business he was assisted by his younger brother Thomas C. In due time, Mr. Hewitt disposed of his interest in this manufacturing returned to Chicago, where he again engaged in the real estate business, and in the purchase of lands for railroad plants. His line of operation was to buy Chicago property at what he thought was a good purchase and wait for a rise in value; and his judgment and keen insight was so good that he often made large amounts on his transactions.

At the time of the World's Fair Mr. Hewitt and his brother Thomas C. built and operated the Plantation Hotel, which became the headquarters for Canadians, and was one of the few hotels operated at a profit during that Exposition. The famous leader of the Independent Order of Foresters, Dr. Oronyaka and his staff and family made their headquarters at the Plantation Hotel and this made it also the headquarters of the I.O.F., which, at that time, was one of the most prosperous fraternal organizations in America, or the world.

Mr. Oliver Morant, at that time Premier of Ontario, was initiated by Oronyaka into the mysteries and secret work of the Foresters in the Plantation Hotel who was assisted in the initiatory services by many prominent Canadians, amongst others being the late Nicholas Awrey M.P.P. for South Westport.

Immediately following the close of the World's Fair, Mr. John Hewitt became interested in the Michie Printing Press Company and his conduct of this manufacturing plant was really the masterpiece of his life.

In 1893 the then proprietor and manager of the Michie Company frequently appealed to Mr. Hewitt for financial assistance, as the company was passing through a very critical stage in its career, and although it was turning out high class products it was in a very precarious financial condition. Mr. Hewitt thus became interested in the plant and eventually decided to buy up the stock, which he did at a low figure.

As soon as Mr. Hewitt secured control of the Michie Company he immediately commenced a system of reorganization and in due time his efforts were crowned with success as the Michie became the leading flat bed press of the world, and after his careful management by Mr. Hewitt as president and treasurer, for many years, he retired and sold his stock for eleven times what he had paid for it; one block of one hundred thousand dollars worth bringing him the handsome sum of one million, one hundred thousand dollars. At the time of Mr. Hewitt's retirement from the management of the affairs of the Michie Company, the plant was turning out eighty-five per cent. of the entire flat bed printing press output of the world.

During the time that Mr. Hewitt was conducting the affairs of the Michie Company, he had secured large blocks of real estate in Chicago, Ill., St. Louis, Pittsburg and Canada, and at the time of his death he still held considerable interest in these places.

During his life, Mr. Hewitt also dabbled a little in gold mining having, at one time, owned two mines in Idaho, one of them being a very rich property but so far from railway facilities that it was impossible to work it at a profit and so it was abandoned after a considerable amount had been expended in developing it.

In later life, Mr. Hewitt turned his attention to the place of his birth, Grimsby, Ontario and in many ways his activities were beneficial to the community. He built, at heavy expense, and without thought of financial remuneration, the Village Inn, which has always been and is yet one of the finest hotels in Ontario, and is known far and wide by tourists and travellers.

Mr. Hewitt spent large sums of money in building piers and dredging at the lake, for the convenience of those who wished to use the harbor. He has been most liberal to all our churches, and educational institutions and was ever ready to extend a helping hand to any one in need. (Continued on page 5)

ANNUAL MEETING DUNROBIN LIMITED

Dr. Sutherland Re-Elected President, and E. C. Welsh, Vice-President—Considerable New Equipment Is Installed.

The annual meeting of Dunrobin Limited was held at two o'clock in the afternoon on Friday May 29th, in the Yellow Room, at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

The meeting was well attended and was representative of shareholders from the United States as well as every section of Ontario taking part in the proceedings.

A voluminous and exhaustive report was made to the meeting by the President, Dr. G. M. Sutherland in which he traced the history of the company from its inception to the present time. This report dealt fully with the present condition of the company, with the progress made since the last general meeting and with the prospects in sight for further advancement.

Mention was made of the first brandy manufactured by the company which recently became of legal age, and of the very fine reception that has been accorded that product from the vendor stores of the Ontario Liquor Control Board where it has been on public sale.

A detailed description was included in this report of the considerable equipment that has recently been installed in preparation for the manufacture of different types of gin, and considerable interest was evidenced in the announcement that a new variation of the present type of gin would be ready for the market very shortly, and of the high hopes of the Executive of the Company regarding its anticipated public reception.

Of special interest to the shareholders in the Niagara Peninsula was the further announcement that very shortly the Company expected to have ready for marketing, a type of gin of very superior quality in the manufacture of which fruit would enter to quite a considerable degree.

The financial report was received from the Auditor, Mr. Frederic Hillary, who explained fully the different items that made up the report.

The present Board of Directors of Dunrobin Limited, consisting of G. M. Sutherland, E. C. Welsh, E. C. Starnes.

Naturalists Hold Field Day—View Species of Birds

Dr. W. E. H. Harburt, Vineland, local chairman of Lincoln and Welland branch field day of the Ontario Federation of Naturalists, reports that a very successful gathering was held Saturday afternoon on the Shields farm at Warner. About one hundred lovers of nature were present from Simcoe, Welland, Thorold, Vineland, Beamsville, St. Catharines and Toronto.

The afternoon was spent in a trip through a five-hundred acres of bush, where many interesting species of birds and snakes were seen. A large number of nests of the great blue heron were examined, as well as the following birds in order of importance, but not commonly seen in these parts, namely the woodcock, pillaged woodpecker, the golden-winged warbler, and the scarlet tanager. In addition, several species of snakes were discovered. A rather rare variety of the lizard family was an interesting creature to see, known as the blue-tailed skink.

Following the field trip, a picnic supper was held around a large open fire. Reports on observations of the trip were given by various members. George H. Dickson, horticultural experimental station, Vineland Station, was chairman. Monroe Landon, Simcoe, spoke on observations of plants; Peter Bryce, staff of the Dominion entomology department, Vineland, had as his subject, insects; Douglas Ross, son of W. A. Ross, Dominion entomologist, Vineland, led the discussion on Birds Seen on Trip. Bruce Murray, Toronto, related the aims and objects of the Federation of Naturalists. L. L. Snyder, of the staff of the zoology department, Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, gave an address on Vanished Birds.

Establishes New Industry In Saltfleet To Preserve Fruits

Harry Biggar, Fruitland, who has been experimenting the past few seasons in the preservation of small fruits, has inaugurated a new industry in Saltfleet township and expects to commence operations as soon as strawberries come on the market. Incidentally Mr. Biggar has ten acres of land set out in strawberries which he planted last year for the purpose of using them in his experiment. The scheme, it is expected, will supply fresh fruit the year around from the field direct to the consumer and will doubtless stimulate the sale and distribution of many varieties of fruits. Mr. Biggar has erected a factory on his farm near the lake and equipped it with the necessary machinery. The method of preserving the fruit is a novel one, it being proposed to pack the strawberries, raspberries and cherries in pint and quart cardboard containers fresh from the field, adding a sugar syrup without cooking the fruit and then rushing them to a cold storage plant in Hamilton where he has contracted a large space, to be frozen.

He is also considering putting up asparagus and green peas in the same way, having done considerable experimenting this year with asparagus. This industry will doubtless give employment to a number of women and men and will be of great economic value to the fruitgrower, if the new undertaking succeeds.

PIANO RECITAL AND MUSICAL

Pupils of Mrs. Catterall And Assisting Artists of C. K. O. C. Hamilton, Furnish Delightful Program.

A delightful musical evening was furnished by the Grimsby pupils of Alice Pearson Catterall, A.C.C.M., of Hamilton, assisted by well-known artists of Radio Station C. K. O. C., of that city when they appeared in a piano recital and musical held in Trinity Hall on Tuesday evening, a large and appreciative audience being present.

Much promising musical talent was disclosed, the renderings of her pupils reflecting the careful training received under the direction of their capable teacher. The solo piano numbers as well as the piano duets in some of which Mrs. Catterall assisted her pupils, were equally effective and the manner in which they were rendered was highly creditable alike to both teacher and pupil.

Lending special interest and variety to the program were the contributions of outstanding artists of Radio Station C.K.O.C., Hamilton, all of whom were heard to splendid advantage. The charming Songbird of the South, Evelyn Goring Webster, delighted the audience with her vocal renderings including "Solitaire Song" by Grieg and "Carmina" by Wilson, while another group composed of "Down in the Forest" by Landon Ronald and the negro spiritual, "Deep River" revealed the rich quality of her soprano voice.

Death Ray Device Works So Jury Acquits Inventor

SAN FRANCISCO—Heavy Fleur's death ray machine worked.

The scene was a courtroom where Fleur was on trial on grand theft charges. Two investors claimed that the device wouldn't kill insects and other pests as the inventor had claimed.

Fleur brought out the machine on his defense. It hummed and sputtered. Its beam was projected toward a couple of tomatoes 10 feet away. In 30 seconds they were dead. A lizard died in four minutes. A snake died in 8 1/2 minutes after the beam had been turned upon it.

The jury took only four minutes to bring in a verdict acquitting the inventor.

Asked if the machine could be developed to kill human beings, Fleur replied it could, with sufficient power, but added emphatically: "I don't intend to do any experimenting along that line."

The inventor said he hopes his machine eventually will be found of practical use in killing orchard and agricultural pests. He claims the ray will not harm plant life.

High frequency vibrations traveling the beam of light, Fleur explained, increase the atomic vibrations in the victim's bodies until internal cells explode, causing death.

Teachers Go To Be Taught

Bookcraft One Class; Children Will Benefit By It

BALFORD, Ont. — New school curriculums are being shaped here by teachers who go to school, as pupils, out of working hours and at their own expense.

A class for the teaching of bookcraft has been established because teachers feel that children should be encouraged in the use of their hands. In an introductory paper published for teachers at the commencement of the session, Mr. M. P. Wrin, the instructor, wrote:

"I am confident that had I had an opportunity when a child to do all the great exercises in craftwork not before children of today, I should now be more richly endowed and know in addition, not less English, mathematics and science, but more, because I should have been happier and loved my 'school' more, had a greater admiration for my master and thrown myself with zeal — all the greater for being unconscious — into all my work. Give me the teacher who is a skilled craftsman — and I will guarantee that a craft lesson is the one in which time flies fastest."

"It is safe to say that what interests children does them 'good', helps them to develop on right lines and along the way intended for them. All children delight in doing and making. Parents especially know that. Why for one moment think of stopping them?"

"On the contrary facilitate them, encourage them, enable them, enthuse them, admire them. Not all thinkers are dreamers; but he who can organize his thoughts and carry them into execution is the type of man who helps to make a nation great."

The bookcraft taught in this class can be adapted to the needs of children from six years of age to 14. The teachers have worked through the preliminary stages by which a child learns to use ruler and pencil, to fold cloth and paste it on boards, make cloth hinges, and learn about lines and angles. The course is designed to fit the child for bookbinding and binding.

Sixty Planes Daily Use Croydon Field

LONDON — With Hammer timetable now in operation, more than 60 aircraft, inward and outward-bound fly in and out of the London airport, Croydon, daily. These include newspaper carriers, cargo-craft, specially-chartered planes, air-liners to and from the Continent, services to and from destinations throughout the Empire, and fast air expresses of the British internal air routes.

In the early hours of the morning the aircraft which carry newspapers to the continent are taking up board their loads and vanishing over the hills on their way to the coast. An early arrival at Croydon is a big German mail and freight plane, operating on the night service from Berlin. After this there are the departures of early-morning passenger planes for the continent. A Dutch service leaves for Amsterdam. A big machine departs for Cologne. A French airliner ascends for Paris. Other services are signalled out to Brussels and Lille.

The traffic of the airway operates with the precision of which one expects to find at a big London railway terminus. As soon as one aircraft has left the departure platform another takes its place.

Here, now, is one of the last expresses of our inland airways, bound out from London up to Glasgow. Then come machines outward bound for Paris, Zurich, Rotterdam, and Budapest. By the Imperial Airways express services one can reach Budapest or Bristol in a day's flying.

Passengers outward bound across the Empire mingle with those who are about to make trips over the continent. After flying from London across the Channel in one of the big four-engine air-liners, long-distance travellers cross the Mediterranean by flying-boat to Egypt, and then continue on to destinations in Africa, India, Malaya, or Australia. Among the scheduled departures are expresses for destinations in Scandinavia, as well as in other parts of Europe, while every now and then a specially-chartered plane will leave on an urgent flight.

So the day wears on — big motor-coaches arriving with fresh parties of passengers, and mail-vans dashing up with bags of letters to be airborne through Europe or for thousands of miles across the Empire.

Now the air-liners of the outward bound evening services are departing and presently with a drone from its powerful engines, a big night freighter is winging its way from Croydon on its flight to Berlin.

All this outward-bound traffic has its counterpart in a stream of inward flying planes. Early morning arrivals at Croydon are from cities such as Amsterdam and Brussels. Then comes a big air-liner from Berlin, followed by one from Paris. Now an inland express reaches Croydon from Glasgow. Its passengers offering connections with services which carry them to destinations on the continent.

From Switzerland, from Sweden, from Finland, the big machines fly—gliding down and taxiing up to the arrival platform. Amidst passengers inward-bound by the Imperial Airways services are those who are completing flights from various points along the Empire routes. Airway porters are ready to handle the luggage. Postal vans stand waiting for the mails. Customs and other officials are busily at work. Speed is the watchword of the airway, on the ground as well as in the sky. And soon the motor-coaches are carrying incoming passengers up into the heart of London.

During practically all the hours of the twenty-four this great Croydon airport is now a scene of well-ordered activity. Apart from the tanks of the traffic staff, and of the wireless and meteorological services, there are the duties of the skilled engineers and craftsmen who work in day-and-night shifts in the sheds where the air-liners are housed.

Proof Against Nicknames!

Comments the Cleveland Plain Dealer — "William Williams distasteful nicknames. He used to say that most given names were ruined by abbreviations which was a sin and a shame. 'I myself,' he said, 'was one of six brothers. We were all given good old-fashioned Christian names but all these names were shortened into a meaningless or foolish monosyllable by our friends. I shall name my children so that it will be impracticable to curtail their names."

The Williams family in the course of time, was blessed with five children, all boys. The eldest was named after the father — William of course, that would be shortened to "Will" or "Willie" but wait! A second son came and was christened Willard. "Ah!" chuckled Mr. Williams "Now everybody will have to speak the full name of each of these boys in order to distinguish them."

In pursuance of this scheme, the next three sons were named Wilbert, Wilfred and Wilmont.

They are all big boys now. And they are respectively known to their intimates as "Will," "Willie," "Willard," "Chuck" and "Kid."

Gives Babies Away 21 Years

Welfare Officer Aided in Adoption of 5,000 Infants

EDMONTON, — Twenty-one years of giving "babies away" has taken up the hours of Charles E. Hill, child-placing officer for the Alberta government.

Known to thousands as "Uncle Charlie," Mr. Hill undertook the job first as a "baby" in 1915 and in 1936 received an official appointment from the government. In ten years he has aided in the adoption of 5,000 babies, some from the homes of the poor and others the children of unwed mothers. From miner and railway worker, Mr. Hill, who was born in Cornwall, England, coming to Canada in 1918, entered child welfare work here as an inspector for the government welfare department.

The man who studies, analyzes, lives and dreams babies, "Uncle Charlie" prides himself on his knack of "matching" babies with parents. He is not a believer in heredity.

"Heredity," he told an interviewer, "counts but little except in cases of disease, mental or physical. It's practically all environment."

He has found that fair couples generally want fair babies and dark couples dark ones. Most people think more girls are adopted than boys but in Alberta three boys are placed for every girl.

Incidentally, Mr. Hill, who is the father of five children, doesn't believe in spanking. The tone of the voice should suffice, he says.

British Motorists To Tour America

85 Visitors in 40 Cars Will Cross Atlantic on Queen Mary to Drive 2,000 Miles

TORONTO, — Eighty-five British motorists with 40 British cars will land from the Queen Mary at New York on July 27 to begin a 2,000-mile trip through the eastern United States and Canada.

The party will be in Toronto for a one-day visit on August 4, and will remain overnight before continuing to Ottawa and thence to Montreal, to return to England on the Duchess of Richmond.

Graham Lyon, president of the financial agency Automobiles and executive committee member of the Junior Car Club of Great Britain was in Toronto recently arranging details of the tour and interviewing civic and automotive officials. The trip, organized by the club on his suggestion, has been endorsed by British motor-car manufacturers as an opportunity of displaying their products to the United States citizens and Canadians.

For this reason several of the latest type British cars will be seen in the motorcade. Humphrey Symons, for many years a leading English newspaper motor critic, will drive a Rolls-Royce Alpine Eagle. Among other cars to be represented by their finest models will be Humber, Millman, Singer, S.S., M.O. and Vauxhall. The tour will embrace Washington, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore and Detroit, in Washington, President Roosevelt will act as host to the tourists, who will include several famous women drivers as well as men who have records at Brooklands and elsewhere.

Mr. Lyon has called for Ottawa, going then to Montreal to sail home. He was absent just three weeks yet he drove over the entire 2,000 mile route himself since he reached America and interviewed various officials at every point of interest and made all the necessary arrangements for the party's reception.

When he first conceived the idea, Mr. Lyon stated he broached it at a club meeting where it was greeted mildly. Nevertheless, he undertook to enroll five cars if all other club members would induce five others to make the trip. A cocktail party was held at which it was announced. Forty places were promptly seized by those present. A second tour for a couple of weeks later was then proposed and 40 other motorists promptly enrolled. Since he left England, several cables have informed him that two more tours of 40 cars each have been promoted. Forty cars in the line of capacity of a motorcade of this type on the ships, other space being reserved for the travellers normally travelling across the Atlantic with their motorcars.

VEIN REACHED AT FIRST LEVEL OF SPLIT LAKE GOLD

Fifteen Foot Width Yields High Results

A message received from the Split Lake Gold Mines property states that the crosscut at the first level of the mine shows 15 feet in width of highly mineralized vein containing over one ounce of gold per ton with some other metal which assayer believes to be platinum. Samples and check samples from along entire side of dump where ore is being dumped from full width of vein yields this result.

Stringers of quartz could be seen in the shaft and in the station. The crosscut continued through this condition for 19 feet at which point it broke into the vein. Since the above information on the 15 foot vein width further word has been received that the crosscut is being continued and at 40 feet from the shaft was still in good looking vein matter. This means 6 feet additional to the 15 foot width referred to. The vein matter throughout the 21 foot width consists of mineralized quartz and heavily mineralized alterations.

This vein has been proven to extend over a length of over 500 feet through diamond drilling with widths ranging up to more than 20 feet. Both diamond drilling and the present underground work have shown the vein to have widened greatly as compared to surface.

The presence of platinum was not suspected and assay supplies at the property are not ample for a proper analysis of the combination of gold and what is believed to be platinum. Meantime samples are being sent to Ottawa for checking.

Although no free gold was seen in this vein on surface or through the diamond drilling, heavy coarse gold was encountered in the crosscut. The visible gold is mixed with the sulphides. Further information will be available from this level accordingly as the work proceeds.

Another telegram from M. L. Donaldson dated May 16th states: "From 19 to 34 feet in south crosscut large percentage mineralized quartz in veins running every direction making complex work. Will have to sample horizontally and vertically. Assays reveal in combination of gold and what we feel sure is platinum plated in parting cup, very fine. Very heavily mineralized and plastered with free gold. Gold occurs in sulphides. Will have another round out Sunday and will wire you details regarding width of orebody also assays."

A telegram received from M. L. Donaldson, May 16th states: "Crosscut 19 feet south of first level just broke into north side vein. Number 5. Very heavily mineralized and plastered with free gold. Gold occurs in sulphides. Will have another round out Sunday and will wire you details regarding width of orebody also assays."

Another telegram from Mr. Donaldson, dated May 16th, states in part: "Have cut another 21 feet of highly mineralized quartz with balance of 7 feet banded structure quartz and alteration. Still in this condition. Going ahead with crosscut. This looks awfully good. Further study assaying trouble suggests large quantities tellurides. Getting necessary supplies to flux telluride ore and make tests."

AIKEN—McPHERSON

A quiet wedding of interest to citizens of Grimsby took place at the manse of Bedford Park United Church, Toronto, on Thursday, May 28th, when Grace Isabelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watson McPheron of Grimsby became the bride of Mr. John Beverley Aiken, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Aiken, Grimsby Beach. Rev. George W. Wood, pastor, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gown in white metalame crepe frock fashioned on long graceful lines, and trimmed with rhinestones at the neck and girdle. She wore a corsage bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Aiken left for Ottawa following the ceremony and on their return are residing in North Grimsby.

BEAN—WADE

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Stoney-mede, Toronto, was the scene of a very pretty May wedding on Saturday afternoon, May 30th, when Miss Kathleen Ethel Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. A. Wade of Toronto was united in marriage to Mr. Roy McDougall Bean of Waterloo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Bean of that town. Rev. Mr. Edward Morley, pastor of the church, performed the wedding ceremony.

Beautifully gowned in white lace chiffon made on fitted lines that flared into a long circular train, the bride entered on the arm of her father. Her veil of white tulle fell in soft folds over her face from a bandeau of orange blossoms, leaving her head uncovered, and swept beyond the train. She carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Mrs. Kenneth LeGrow of Toronto as matron of honor. Two bridesmaids were in attendance, Mrs. William Bean of Waterloo, sister-in-law of the groom, and Miss Helen Smith of Oshawa. The bride's attendants were gown in white tulle, also made on fitted lines, but frilling from knee to ankle. They carried frilled white muffs and wore orchid velvet shoes.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. William Bean of Waterloo. The ushers were Mr. D. W. H. Jenkins of Kitchener and Mr. R. G. Anglin of Toronto.

During the signing of the register Miss Norma Willocks sang "I Love You."

A wedding reception was held at the Old Mill Tea Gardens at which toasts were proposed to the bride by Rev. E. Morley and responded to by the groom. The couple left by motor on a wedding trip through New York State. On their return they will take up residence at Bara Castle, Queen street, Kitchener.

Among those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Bean of this town.

EVERY
2 LBS. OR OVER
AT 8 WEEKS!

MRS. D. L. STOREY, R. R. 4, Simcoe, Ont., started 511 Gray Chicks—New Hampshire—this Spring. She raised 507. The day they were 8 weeks old there wasn't a cockerel less than 2 lbs. in the flock. Many were over 2½ lbs., some up to 2½ lbs. Most of the pullets were 1½ lbs., some up to the even 2 lbs. And all were wonderfully well feathered.

This is the kind of growthiness and vitality you want in your young-hatched chicks. It brings the pullets into production while egg prices are still at the high levels — and gives your cockerels the kind of finish that commands top market prices.

Gray chicks of other breeds are showing the same kind of thriftiness. It's results like this that are making Gray chicks increasingly popular. Our "end of the season" prices are very attractive.

Homer R. Watson, R. C. A. Passes at Doon Canada's Outstanding Landscape Artist Watson Home as Memorial is Urged

Yesterday at GRIMSBY PARK

Historical Remembrance
of
Township

Owing to the passing of the much-loved artist, the late Homer Watson, R.C.A., uncle of the author of "Yesterday at Grimsby Park", the usual instalment of this historical remembrance is omitted this week and the space devoted to a sketch of the career of this notable Canadian landscape painter.

The accompanying thumb nail sketch which appears from week to week in the publication, is a reproduction from a beautiful drawing by the late Mr. Watson, a kindly gift from this eminent artist, which will be utilized on the cover of the completed work.

In the quiet village of Doon, Homer Ramsford Watson, R.C.A., O.S.A., internationally known as the most outstanding of Canada's Landscape artists, the Dominion's great old master, passed away on Saturday morning in his 82nd year. Removed from the cities that had no love for him, he lived in the same community throughout his long span of years, in a setting which has changed with the years from the deep forest and lowly cottage of his youth to the present well-titled graceful hills and smiling valleys, the trees and the open road leading to the artistic home and historic gallery he has left, which is filled with the works of his palette and brush, a true heritage of Canadian art.

Mr. Watson was not a recluse. He generally welcomed friends and strangers alike to his studio and gallery, and many who took advantage of that opportunity will recall an hour of enjoyment to be cherished as unique and delightful. His mind was keen, and being a man of very wide reading on all the great questions of the day, his brilliant conversational powers and his ready wit through which a subtle kindness flowed, made his counsel and companionship much sought by people from all walks of life, apart from his art, as well as by his fellow artists. His spacious old fashioned home is a gem of art.

His Pictures

His pictures which he gave to the world so generously and in such great numbers are the highest type of landscape painting. His work, exhibited in the Royal Canadian Academy, Montreal Art Association and Toronto Art Gallery, is also represented in the Montreal and Ottawa National Art Galleries. They grace exclusive walls abroad as well as in the United States and Canada, and are to be found in the Van Horn, Ross, Drummond and many other private collections.

"The Pioneer Mill", his first big landscape painting was the picture purchased by the Marquis of Lorne in 1880 for Queen Victoria's private collection at Windsor Castle. It was awarded a prize in Montreal and the gold medal at the Louisiana Purchase Exhibition in 1885.

After this signal success he painted "The Last of the Drift", a great vista of broken rocks and distant mountains and gathering storm, also "The Torrent", selling them both to Lord Lorne. The former hangs in Windsor Castle beside "Pioneer Mill" while "The Torrent" is in Kensington Palace.

Soon after followed "In the Gathering Storm", a storm effect with frightened cattle and "Fighting Shadows", these being painted before he made his first trip to Europe in 1887 where he remained for three years. Here he exhibited "The Village by the Sea" in the Royal Academy at London and "The Mill in the Ravine" at the New Gallery, doing further exhibiting with the notable artists of the day regularly in the Royal Academy and Paris Salon. Some of the titles of Mr. Watson's best known early works are "The Stone Bridge" which hangs at Oxford University, "The Wreckers" at Mel-

Royal Club; "The Beech", "Moonrise", "The Sawmill" and "The Mill Pond."

Three years after his first success Mr. Watson was elected a member of the Royal Canadian Academy and after his return from England in 1890 he gave enthusiastic leadership toward the awakening of an art movement in Canada, in the meantime making several journeys abroad. In 1904 he was elected President of the Canadian Art Club which he was greatly instrumental in establishing and from 1918 to 1922 was president of the Royal Canadian Academy.

In later years the paintings in his large private art gallery at Doon have won equal acclaim. These include "The Source", "Spring in the Woods", "Evening After the Rain", "October Day on the Grand River", "The First Snow", "The Valley of the Ridge". A fortune in masterpieces lines the walls of the gallery and his artistic old fashioned home.

The great majority of subjects for his pictures were taken from the scenery in and surrounding his native village, and the glories of the early days in the virgin forest and the limpid waters of full rivers live on because of the magic of his brush. A few are marines while others are paintings from the Rockies, Cape Breton's Shores and also include a number of English and Scottish scenes of rare beauty while three large war paintings are the property of the department of national defence, Ottawa. "Valcarver Camp" and two other paintings idealist in treatment, "Into the Unknown" and "Out of the Pit".

His landscapes are not sketches or studies of nature but are scenes recalled and impressions remembered at the time the scene was observed. His work has been described by fellow artists as containing the poetic element with a dramatic feeling that is strong in all his work. His style is robust and vigorous, his color deep and sensitive, while his compositions are broadly comprehensive in general effect. "The Dry Water Course" reproduced in "Masterpieces of Modern Art" with its group of noble trees, its fine sky and distance and cattle in the foreground, gives an excellent idea of the fine pastoral quality of Watson's work, while it reveals at the same time the sturdy honesty of his technical methods. It is a most poetic interpretation of nature. Stanley Meyer, an old colleague fittingly says, "For those who live tomorrow, he has pictured the beauty of yesterday."

His Life Story

Homer Watson was born January 14th, 1855 in the heavily wooded community of Doon in Waterloo County. He was the son of Ramsford Watson and Susannah Moore. His grandfather had a saw mill, a mill factory and the first woolen mill in the county and his father ran it, dying suddenly from typhus fever. "In those days people never got well from things like that. People live longer now," said Mr. Watson.

So it was that suddenly from a comfortable way of living his mother found herself in financial difficulties with four children, the eldest, Homer, but seven years of age.

Prime Minister of Canada Suggests Preservation of Watson Home as Memorial

"In the death of Homer Watson, Canada has lost one whose name will ever be foremost in the realm of Canadian art. Homer Watson was recognized, not only as a great Canadian artist, but as one of the best of living landscape artists in any part of the British Empire. Throughout his lifetime, his work received the highest and widest recognition. Mr. Watson was a man of the highest culture. He possessed great literary as well as artistic ability. His home and studio at Doon, were visited, not only by lovers of art and friends from all over Canada, but by visitors to whom his reputation was known in many parts of the world. It will remain one of the historic homes of our country, and should be preserved as such."

"Like many artists, Homer Watson was a true patriot, a lover of his own country. Had he wished to do so, he might, years ago, have gone to England to live, and received much wider recognition of his art and skill. He preferred, however, to remain in the little village of Doon, on the banks of the Grand River, in Waterloo county, with which, from boyhood days, he had been associated, and the natural beauty of which he loved so dearly."

"Only a few months ago Canada lost another of her great painters in the passing of Carl Ahrens, whose home during most of his lifetime was also in Waterloo county. Ahrens' work, like Watson's, enjoyed an international reputation. He and Homer Watson were intimate personal and lifelong friends."

"Few, if any parts of Canada, have exhibited sounder or finer agricultural and industrial development than Waterloo County. It is conceivable, however, that long after the names of many of those who have been responsible for this development have been forgotten, the names of Homer Watson and Carl Ahrens will continue to have their association, not only with Waterloo county, but with the history of Canada."

"They have given to their day and generation the highest inspiration in creative art. They have as well left on canvas a record of artistic achievement associated with the natural beauty of our country, which will be the proud heritage of future generations." —Hon. W. L. M. King

At a very early age he had shown the signs of the artist. An old nurse maid of his, liked to pass the story along that no one had the artist's first drawings because he ate them. Often he would say while sitting in his chair at the table, "Can't eat," and then make pictures of his food which generally then made it fit to eat to his young mind. Wind mills and the water wheel turning round in rushing water caused him great excitement. In the old log school house where the three R's were taught to him he often drew the rugged outlines of a tree, the old rail fence, and more than once he was chastised for succumbing to an insistent desire to draw his teacher's nose and forbidding profile. "Didn't I tell you you could draw inanimate things but not the human form divine," admonished his teacher.

"He had a broken nose, to one side, and wore a wig, you know, that never set right, but I thought he had a picturesque looking head. He was a fine old man, too good for us," reminisced Mr. Watson.

But when his father died the young lad took on increased responsibilities with the years. His painting which he pursued at every opportunity, did not meet with the approval of many of his friends or relatives. Times were hard and men and women toiled long hours side by side in the daily task of field and forest. There were no minutes for such philosophizing of precious time, they thought.

He early formed a great love for trees and disliked to see the heads of cut-up logs ready for the sawmill. Trees were all around along the roadside and the river edge. "I thought they'd last for all time, but they didn't. As the forests went we had greater floods and that killed the trees," said Mr. Watson.

His sensitive fingers became hardened to manual labor but he still clung to his vision of beauty and fed on the glory of the landscape of Doon. His determination to become an artist never wavered and though ridiculed and rebuffed he headed none of it.

Then the great day came when Mr. M. R. Perine, who owned the saw mill with his brother, Joseph, gave the boy his first commission to draw his mother's portrait. Diligently he set to work and as pleased were they that he was presented with a $15.00 box of paints. It was the turning point in his career and saving the tide of local opinion from ebbing to admiration although Mr. Perine felt this encouragement might lead the boy to false hopes and urged him to come into business with them. He liked the boy and said as one bought pictures in this new country and he should stop wasting his time.

But the boy stood firm, and in an ecstasy of enthusiasm he worked out as best he could the secrets of light and shade with his new paints. His genius was finding expression.

Through a few more years he industriously set about acquiring artistic execution, being altogether self-taught, and earnestly sought to depict nature in all her moods. Out of it came his first large landscape picture, "The Pioneer Mill".

The Marquis of Lorne, then Governor-General of Canada, was instrumental in founding the Royal Canadian Academy and the first Exhibition was shortly to be held. In fear and trembling the young man bound it up and sent it down to Toronto and then was appalled at what he thought was his impertinent conceit. He argued to himself "how could the first painting of an untalented boy bring anything but ridicule and laughter." While in this slough of despair Mr. Perine renewed his advice to him to quit the nonsense of going into art in Canada.

"I convinced myself that he was right," said Mr. Watson; "and was on the point of taking the position offered, but when on my way to tell him, I saw him coming towards me waving the Toronto Globe."

"I take it all back," he shouted. "Go on and paint."

Across the top in streaming headlines stood out the flaming words, "Country boy paints picture bought by Princess Louise."

From that day on he entered into the life of the professional landscape painter. The deep forest and the meadow, the river and the sky claimed him. Frequently at night the soft light of the moon or the glitter of the stars in the great black firmament overhead called him to favorite haunts in the ancient trees where he could sit alone in comfortable grotesque crotches and absorb the solitude and peace of nature.

His Home Life

After this encouragement to his highest hopes he celebrated at the earliest opportunity by marrying the girl of his choice, Rosanna Bechtel, who through the ensuing years proved a staunch and loving help mate to him in his progress towards the phenomenal successes which were his. One boy was born to them but he died soon after birth. In their later years they adopted a little girl of four whom they called Mary Watson, now Mrs. Stewart Williams, of Doon.

After the death of his beloved wife on January 13th, 1918, his only sister, Miss Phoebe Watson, also an artist of marked ability especially in china painting, came to live with him, a loving and capable companion through the declining years of his life. He has one brother who survives as well, William James Watson, of Waterloo, his other brother, Irving having predeceased him a few years ago.

In religion he became a firm believer in a future life. The study of psychical research implanted in him a strong spiritual faith that steadily grew with the years. "My materialism which held me for a period in my younger days has been knocked out of me thoroughly and for all time, and I am content with my old church, feeling after all she is built on a rock," said Mr. Watson. "Now I have a surety that Christ lived after the Crucifixion, and so I feel the universe is a going concern and not altogether a stupid thing of the strong deceiver of the weak; for all will be adjusted somewhere, sometime, somehow." In his valuable library are many deep convincing religious books of the day which he profoundly studied and discussed.

Mr. Watson, in collaboration with the late D. B. Detwiler, had much to do with the conservation of Grand River Park (Cremation Woods) which is situated near his home at Doon. He was also a member of the Albany Club, Arts and Letters in Toronto and fraternally a member of A. F. and A. M.

Passed Away Saturday

Mr. Watson had been ill for many months, each acute attack leaving him weaker. Through it all he kept on painting whenever it was possible until his supple fingers grew too weak to hold the brush. While sitting in his chair studying a half finished work on the easel before him he said, "It upsets me so to think I've taken all these years to acquire this knowledge and now when I know how to get these effects I haven't the strength to do it." Although his outstanding achievements had won him general acclaim he was ever seeking the larger vision. Death claimed him with gentle hands on Saturday morning when he passed peacefully away in his 82nd year.

The body rested all day Sunday at the Schreier-Sandrock Funeral home, Kitchener, when fellow citizens from all walks of life, filed past the casket from early morning until late afternoon when the body was removed to his home in Doon where it was placed in the art gallery amidst the beautiful paintings which were his handiwork.

On Sunday arrangements were made for a death mask by a fellow artist and life long friend, John S. Gordon, who felt the artist's admirers would desire this memorial. The mask was made by John Sloan, sculptor and teacher at the Hamilton Art School, assisted by Mrs. Gordon.

Funeral On Tuesday

Hundreds of sorrowing relatives and friends were in attendance at the funeral which took place on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, constituting a striking tribute to an eminent citizen and indicating the warm place he held in the hearts of his fellows.

The service was conducted by Rev. W. Patterson, minister of the Presbyterian Church, Preston, who emphasized his sterling qualities of heart and mind, his wonderful simplicity, marked unselfishness and great humility.

Mr. Wyly Grier, President of the Royal Canadian Academy and a fellow artist and friend of fifty years standing, reviewed his notable contributions to his day and generation and stressed his singleness of purpose, the late Mr. Watson practically living for his art of which he was so eminent an exponent.

His remains were laid to rest in the Doon cemetery which is situated near his home.

Active pallbearers were: John Watson, Waterloo; James Watson, Kitchener; Ford Watson, Toronto; Robert Farrar, Hamilton; George Farrar, Brantford, and Dr. W. Weimer, Ayr, nephews of the painter.

Honorary pallbearers were: Mr. Wyly Grier, Fred B. Bridges, Arthur H. H. Palmer, C. W. Jeffreys, H. S. Palmer, G. H. Reed and Colonel C. B. McCullough. Colonel McCullough represented the Canadian Club of Hamilton.

Household Science

Always A Winner

Chocolate meringue pie will always hold first place on the family menu. Here is an excellent, proved recipe.

Perfect pastry is the basis of all good pies and is easily made by the new method of using a fine cake flour to give a light flaky crust. One of the first rules in pastry making is to use cold ingredients and handle them lightly. A second important pointer is to use water cautiously. Too many cooks dump the water on the flour and shortening mixture, then have to knead and handle a sticky dough mixture and this is one of the commonest causes of tough pastry.

The best way to add water is to sprinkle 1 teaspoon of cold water over a portion of mixture and toss together lightly with a fork — just enough to make it hold together — then leave it. Add water to another portion and stir another damp ball. Continue till all the flour is dampened, then wrap dough in waxed paper and thoroughly chill.

The finest plain pastry is made of this simple recipe:

2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 2 1/2 cups cold shortening; 1 1/2 cups cold water (about).

Sift flour once, measure, add salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening till pieces are about the size of small peas. Add water, a small amount at a time, mixing lightly with fork. Also handle as little as possible. Wrap in waxed paper, chill thoroughly. Roll out on slightly floured board. Bake pastry in hot oven (425 degrees F.). Makes enough pastry for one 9-inch two-crust pie, or fifteen 2 1/2-inch tart shells.

Chocolate Meringue Pie

3 squares unsweetened chocolate, cut in pieces; 2 1/2 cups milk; 1 cup of sugar; 1/2 cup sifted cake flour; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten; 2 tablespoons butter; 2 teaspoons vanilla; 1 baked 9-inch pie shell; 2 egg whites, 4 tablespoons of sugar.

Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar, flour and salt; add gradually to chocolate mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly; then continue cooking 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour small amount of mixture over egg yolks, stirring vigorously, return to double boiler and cook two minutes longer. Remove from boiling water; add butter and vanilla. Cool. Turn into pie shell. Beat egg whites until they are foamy throughout; add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until the mixture will stand in peaks. Then pile lightly on filling. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes, or until delicately browned.

Spanish Rice

1 1/2 cups rice, cooked
1 onion
1 green pepper
1 can tomatoes
1 pound raw hamburger steak
Pepper and salt

Method — Wash the rice and cook only five minutes. Chop up onion and green pepper and mix all the ingredients together. Put in the dish in which it is to be served, and bake. Served with baked potatoes this does make a good meal.

Baked Rice with Cheese

2 cups cooked rice
Butter
1 1/2 cup grated cheese
Milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
Bread crumbs

Method — Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with rice, and sprinkle with cheese, season and dot with butter. Repeat until rice and the cheese are used. Add milk to half the depth of rice. Cover with crumbs. Bake at 350 F. about 20 minutes or until cheese melts and crumbs become brown.

High Grade Salt Found in Alberta

EDMONTON — Drillers in the McMurray district, 30 miles north of here have struck a core of high grade salt in "the most important strike in the province since Royaltite No. 4 was brought in at Turner Valley," Hon. C. C. Ross, minister of lands and mines, announced recently.

Operations have been carried on for the past two months by eastern interests headed by F. J. Batcheller, former bank manager at various Alberta points and now a resident of Brockville, Ont.

"The salt found to date seems to be a very high grade product, with a very small percentage of impurities," Mr. Ross said in a statement. The company intends to sink two more shafts before erecting a plant, he said.

Core extracted from the new proerty is now at Mr. Ross' office here. It amounts to 99 per cent., a high proportion in a salt core, the minister noted.

During drilling the salt was found at 694 feet and the drill then passed through a solid salt seam for 100 feet. Total depth of operations so far is 800 feet.

PROBLEMS OF EVERY DAY LIFE

By Dr. M. M. Lappin

Self-Expression

"I have to read a short paper at our institute, and as I am not much good at that sort of thing, I wonder if you can spare a few moments of your time to help me."

That sentence is taken from a letter which has come to my desk. It serves to show the variety of questions which come to me from time to time. The problems of every day life are many and varied and what one person would think no problem at all is, for many another person, a very real and difficult problem.

Of course there are things which I cannot undertake to do, and I can never pretend to teach the art of public speaking in this column. The editor placed this column at my disposal for the express purpose of trying to help readers with their actual problems about living. However, I am always ready and anxious to help wherever help is needed, and it may be that the writer of the letter from which I've here quoted is in need of help. At all events, the ability to properly express oneself is, for a great many people, quite a perplexing problem.

Well, I believe everybody should learn and practice the art of self-expression. It is a great asset in our life. One never knows when it may come in useful, and, if one can rise to the occasion when called on, it may make all the difference between permanent success and permanent failure.

Part of that art consists of learning to forget oneself. There are a great many folks who can talk quite intelligently and fluently in any ordinary conversation, but when it comes to making a speech to public they feel lost. The main reason is that they cannot forget themselves. They fear lest they may create a wrong impression of themselves, and so long as that is the case, they will never be able to speak well in public.

The strange thing is that these folks are not aware of this. They attribute their inability to lack of the proper training, or lack of practice, or to some other thing, but seldom, if ever, to being unable to forget themselves.

Of course they fear the audience, but they fear the audience because they are really thinking of themselves. If only they would try to forget themselves and the audience, and think of what they have to say, they would be able to speak with greater ease and accomplishment.

But it is foolish to think that one can get up and make a good speech without having prepared. You must first have something to say, and secondly you must know how to say it, so that it shall be understood. A well informed, richly stored mind is an essential part of the good speaker's equipment, and, given that, it is not so difficult to forget oneself and the audience.

Reading and writing are included in the speaker's preparation. One must read to be informed and writing helps to give facility of expression. Make notes of what you read. Write your speech, and then rewrite, and then, perhaps you will have to write again before you are satisfied. "Reading maketh a full man," wrote Lord Bacon. "writing an exact man."

NOTE: The writer of this column is a trained psychologist and an author of several works. He is willing to deal with your problem and give you the benefit of his wide experience. Questions regarding problems of EVERYDAY LIVING should be addressed to: Dr. M. M. Lappin, room 421, 73 Adelaide Street, West, Toronto, Ontario. Enclose a 3 cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

Chicken Stealing Risky Business In The Future

Signs on Barnyard Gates Will Warn Thieves to Steer Clear

STRATFORD—Ray Wildgust writing in the Stratford Beacon-Herald observes:

Stealing chickens in the future won't be just a matter of visiting the nearest farmyard, hauling away a load of birds and disposing of them in the next town. It'll be a matter of explaining the tattoo marks under the birds' wing when they are purchased and the man who tries to hide the brand of a stolen chicken will be regarded in the same light as the man who tries to hide the brand of stolen cattle in the West.

Believe it or not but chicken stealing had become such a "big business" that poultry raisers were forced finally to apply to United States poultry raisers for help in putting to an end the heavy losses incurred each year by poultry men as wary thieves made inroads on their poultry.

The result of the conference with poultry men across the border has been that Canadian poultry raisers have decided to adopt a tattooing system whereby each chicken will be protected with the little blue marks under the wings—marks which will identify each bird as the property of certain poultry raisers and birds which cannot be disposed of unless the salesman proves that the brand on the birds is his.

Signs Warn Thieves

Complete details of the chicken branding scheme have not been drawn up as yet and officials of the tattooing organization have not as yet received authority from the Federal Government to go ahead with their work, assured that they will be recognized and given protection of police.

The proposal as put forth to Stratford and Perth County poultry raisers is that each man purchase his own tattooing equipment from the association which is sponsoring the work, mark his own birds and "hang out his shingle" in front of his poultry ranch. The "shingle" or sign provided by the association will serve as a warning to prospective thieves that the property is protected by the tattooing system.

Poultrymen have had a "tough" time trying to persuade authorities that chicken stealing is a serious business.

"Every chicken theft means loss, not of just the birds stolen, but their offspring," one poultry raiser said. "There are potentialities in poultry that even the breeder himself cannot estimate. A bird that is stolen may have bred some of the best chicks in the flock if she had lived long enough. We don't judge a bird just on her table value."

Walking Now on Ottawa

This same poultry raiser said that there has been a considerable amount of pioneer work done right here in Stratford among poultry breeders who have been trying to impress upon authorities the seriousness of chicken thefts.

Representatives of a group of poultry raisers who decided to adopt the United States tattoo system are momentarily awaiting word from Ottawa that the government will recognize the organization as a Tattooing Protective Association and once that recognition is obtained the work of the new organization will commence.

Dog Tackles Porcupine

A dog owned by Frank Jones of Duncannon, Huron County, went off on a trip with a couple of other dogs. Two dogs returned the same day and showed evidence of having encountered a porcupine. It was two days later when Frank Jones' dog came in and it was blinded and literally filled with porcupine quills, and its condition was so bad it had to be destroyed.

That is something dogs do not seem to learn — that they should leave porcupines alone. Last season in Muskoka we saw a resident using a pair of pliers to take quills out of his dog's nose. He also had a few in his mouth, and that was the second time that dog had tackled a porcupine. He had apparently opened his mouth and gone right after the porcupine.

There are some who still believe the porcupine will shoot its quills as a measure of defence. It never does that because it cannot. It has a sort of peace-time armament; that is, if other animals and people leave it alone nothing will happen. But when tackled the porcupine's equipment is such that it will do a great deal of damage. A good many dogs have found that out—Peterborough Examiner.

Crop Restriction Is Futile Policy

Writer Cites Three Notable
Failures Proving Statement

An analysis of agricultural marketing schemes, with particular reference to Canada's Natural Products Marketing Act, by John E. McCallum, M.P.A., appears in the May issue of The Canadian Chartered Accountant. Mr. McCallum is frankly critical of the ultimate value of such schemes. He says: "Whenever agriculture suffers economic reverses attention concentrates on the price situation, and if the government decides to take any steps to meet the situation these efforts are usually given the title of marketing legislation. A clearer view of the real facts would be disclosed if the term price raising were substituted in such legislation for the term marketing. It is our belief that improvement in marketing, in the timing of production and in the methods of distribution is what agriculture needs. The latest legislation, and in fact most of the politically significant legislation affecting Canadian agriculture, is open to this general criticism, that it constitutes a price raising scheme and that it fails to deal with the real problem, which is a marketing problem." Some of the regulations adopted in connection with the grain trade, he notes, make this an exception to the general criticism.

As a background to the present economic situation of agriculture, it must be remembered that in many foreign countries the trend is now towards a policy of sustaining and developing domestic agriculture. Consequently, a country such as Canada must adjust her economy to the production of some "competitive advantage" products to take the place of that part of her "disadvantage" products which foreign barriers have made unavailable at any price in the world market.

Restriction of production does not seem to offer a feasible means of improving the price structure. The author cites the Stevenson Plan for rubber, the Valeriano Scheme for Brazilian coffee and some of the United States "new deal" legislation as notable examples of failure in this respect. "The inference," he says, "is inescapable that price raising and compulsory restriction of production offer no long-term solution to a condition of low prices for any particular agricultural product."

On the other hand, he commends the New Zealand butter scheme. "The activities of the Board," he says, "include quality inspection and advertising in foreign markets. Care is taken to avoid price fixing. A real job has been done in expanding demand abroad. There is a noticeable consumer preference in Great Britain for this quality, guaranteed product. The success of this New Zealand scheme recommends quality grading and demand stimulation as worthy features of any scheme aiming at improvement of agriculture in Canada."

The article discusses in some detail both the background and the provisions of the Canadian act and summarizes the favorable and unfavorable features. The conclusion is that "Agriculture requires a long-term policy instead of a depression policy. There are joint costs associated with production and with distribution. A thorough research into costs and spreads should bring down costs and expand demand. Higher values even at slightly lower prices will yield increased incomes all around. Marketing schemes can serve successfully only the specialized producer; all imposed regulation on agriculture should encourage the efficient producer and discourage the inefficient operator."

Outstanding Aptitudes Often Indicated in Early Childhood

Ask Johnny what he wants to be when he grows up. Very likely he will say "a policeman" or "a soldier," or "to act in a circus." Dreams are usually made of here stuff in childhood, but to long for a flying trapeze is no indication of fitness for the job. It takes more than that to indicate to the observant mother latent possibilities in her child.

While Johnny is talking so big and his thoughts are miles away on the future, observe what those little awkward hands are doing, or his eyes, or ears, or feet.

Natural Aptitude

Perhaps he takes a piece of paper and a pencil, and with a few swift lines draws a proportionate outline of his mother, or father, or an unrecognizable horse or cat. You could not do it. But here is a five-year-old boy setting down exactly what his eyes see, without any instruction or teacher to show him how.

In school he may some day learn to do like drawing and not make a creditable showing. He won't be able to follow line by line, the directions given, so you decide that he is not cut out for an architect or for advertising after all, so why not make him into a lawyer or doctor? Entirely forgotten is that he set in his almost-babyhood when he knew form and line instinctively without a word from anyone. Johnny showed then, as clearly as he could, that he had more than mere aptness for creative work and unusual observation.

Forgotten Genius

Small Betty loves to sing and can carry difficult tunes. She won't stay away from the piano. She picks out easy harmonies by ear and sings to them. She reacts to music constantly and her moods depend on it. Later, in school, she loses some of her enthusiasm through the mechanics of instruction. Then you say, "We thought Betty would be more interested in the Girl Guides."

Let her be interested in anything she wants. Don't be misled. Her early love and aptitude for music is still there, latent. Why educate her to be a mechanical worker when her whole nature asserted itself in those first few years and divined the rhythm and melody of her being?

During intermediate years children are often discouraged by the work attached to training. They also become discouraged by being held back in classes moving at a deliberate gait. Such matters have to be worked out as best they may. Our point is that early childhood often indicates genius that is lost because it is forgotten.

Alfalfa in Canada

Alfalfa is no foreign crop which has been growing in popularity in Canada since the beginning of the present century. The average acre in this crop in 1933 was 762,299 and the yield amounted to 1,564,709 tons, valued at $15,743,000. The average price per ton was $1.01 and the average yield per acre was 2.05 tons.

Alfalfa gives a larger production per acre than is obtained from either clover or timothy. It has been grown for many years at the Central Experimental Farm.

"Boys and girls, come out to play;
The moon doth shine as bright as day!"

A girl's soprano and a boy's tenor, accompanied by the pleasant noise of the whirling star of roller skates in perfect time and perfect rhythm. The two sweet voices travelling with them.

Coming nearer, swelling, rising. Growing fainter — fainter — dying.

Youth commands the moonlit street. Skating in a pinnace fleet. Through broad bands of light and of shade.

Thrown upon the asphalt white. Gliding through the leader night. Youth advances, youth recedes. Lost among the shadowed trees.

"Boys and girls come out to play;
The moon doth shine as bright as day!"

Says It Isn't True We Eat Too Much

Julius Caesar seems to have had the right idea, but he did not think of it in time. He said he wanted men about him that were fat, "such as sleep of nights." He distributed Canada, with his "lean and hungry look," and he knew "such men are dangerous." But he did not do anything about it but talk to Mark Antony, and it resulted in the notorious affair on the Capital steps, by all odds the most notable gang murder in history.

It is pleasant to observe, after a long, long while of the lean and hungry philosophy, that the western civilization is rather turning to the idea that a judicious use of food is not necessarily a business of miserably counting every calorie apart and regarding every old-fashioned bread and butter and potatoes baked in their jackets as if they were no more than a source of fuel. No less a person than Dr. J. E. McLester, president of the American Medical Association, has lately come out with the declaration that the cult of the dietitian on a cup of coffee and a slice of thin dry toast is very often a foolish and dangerous proceeding.

Dr. McLester is all for the reasonable use of food. He is against the unreasonable abstemiousness as he is against the unreasonable indulgence. He says it is not true of most of us, as we have been told in behalf of 16,000 slimming regimens, that we eat too much. Many of us, he thinks, and especially women, are young people who do better to eat more than it has been fashionable to lately. The doctor reminds us of when we might know well enough if only we merely stopped to think, that there is no royal road to reducing.

It seems that the trouble about dieting has not really been dieting at all. You do not diet when you starve, by any other name is equally a bad thing. No doubt the proper use of food is a proper and important study of mankind, and no doubt moderation is almost the only golden specific and universal prescription.

Children Think Members Do Not Look Very Clever

Visitors in House Gallery Also Couldn't Hear What Was Going on Below

OTTAWA.—Forty little girls, aged 10 and 11, seated neatly in rows in the visitors' gallery, absorbed what they could hear of the speeches in the House of Commons as part of their education. Afterwards, in a bay windowed recess of a parliamentary corridor, they were questioned by their teacher, Miss Margaret McLean.

The girls have been studying " civics " all year and after this trip to give them a general idea of how the laws are made by men whose pictures they had seen in the papers, they were keen to show their knowledge.

Did they know who was the Prime Minister? A dozen hands went up. "Mr. King." The gentlemanly cluster of around Mr. King were the Liberals. Who were those closest to Mr. King? A hand or two went up. They were the Cabinet ministers.

What were the gentlemen doing? One solitary hand went up. "They are making rules for Ottawa." No, that was not quite right, said Miss McLean, they were not making rules for Ottawa, but Canada, also provinces and one territory. And what did they do this afternoon? There was a general silence, then an outburst: "We couldn't hear."

Finally an outburst asked a question: Did the children think the members looked very clever? The answer, the most unanimous came with one voice. "No," said the 40 little future voters.

English Divines Are Divided On War

(London Letter by David Darrah in Chicago Tribune)

That English churches are seriously split in their attitude toward war and toward the government's recruiting campaign is disclosed in outspoken utterances of British religious leaders.

A number of ministers are already facing the prospect of going to prison in event of war.

Another group is asking — Should pacifists pay income tax — especially the new additions expressly for armaments?

The cleavage it appears, is usually between clergymen over 40 years of age and those below.

A large proportion of the young men are pacifists who would not even wear a uniform or serve on the ground that to do so is to take part in war. Among the older clergy are a majority who are strong supporters of the League of Nations, who uphold nonviolence, and who would approve of the use of armed forces in case of need.

Conflict exists over what pacifism is, since those for the most part call themselves pacifists also. It is difficult to arrive at estimates of the strength of the various groups within the free churches, but after discussions with well-informed persons it would seem that about a tenth to a fifth are extreme pacifists.

A fifth take an approximately Tory view that the British Empire must be preserved and fought for if the need arises.

The remainder support the League of Nations and collective security, a great many of them favoring an international force to do police work. Of the Church of England, it is still

Increase in Heart Disease Of Youth Due to Fast Life

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Boys and girls who stay up late at night, drinking and smoking and carrying on, are likely to come down with heart disease.

Dr. Howard B. Sprague, of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, made that statement before the American Heart Association. "Coronary heart disease," he said, "is increasing among the youth of today as a result of the faster tempo of the life they are leading."

The apparent increase in other forms of heart disease, he said, "is really due to the longer life periods of human beings as a result of modern advances in medicine."

He warned against taking exercise "in leaps and bounds."

"It is foolish," he added, "to play 36 holes of golf one day and then wait three months before going to the course again."

"If unused to exercise, the individual should not take on a program too heavy for his abilities."

Monkeys Revealed by Tests As Rugged Individualists

more difficult to speak with accuracy. Only about 10 Anglican clergymen have joined the pacifist group pledged to take no part in war and to make it impossible.

Rough corresponding figures of the free churches are:
Methodist clergy, 651 out of 3,500.
Congregational, about 350 out of 2,000.

Baptists, possibly 200 out of 2,000. In addition, Unitarian ministers who have renounced war number about 100, Presbyterians 75, and the Church of Scotland about 200.

It is clear that the proportion of the whole is comparatively small. The attitude of Anglican clergy is complicated by the church's close association with the State and by personal family ties with war relatives serving in the armed forces.

The British recruiting campaign to prove to be very unsatisfactory from the government's standpoint. The War Office had hoped to enlist 20,000 men during the year. Twenty-four weeks have passed and only about 9,000 men have been enlisted. The government's three minutes recruiting film, in which War Minister Duff Cooper appeared for men, coupled with scenes of army life, was not an unqualified success. A well-informed person in the film industry said the film was unfortunate — did not have a good effect.

Dr. Donald Soper, minister at St. Martin's Church, London, and a joint secretary of the Methodist Fellowship of Peace, makes no bones about his opposition to recruiting. He speaks against it on Tower Hill.

"If the situation becomes really critical I should have to take upon myself the task of inciting to disobedience," he said. "I should advise soldiers to throw down their arms."

He feared that his action might lead him to jail.

Cow Raising Motherless Colt

Adopted at birth, last February by a Holstein cow, the pure-bred racing colt owned by Mrs. E. E. Webster, of Maitland, in progressing splendidly. They make their daily visits to the pasture together. The colt was left motherless at birth but quickly acquired the desired relationship which has continued unbroken.

EVANSTON, Ill.—Socialistic practices, a psychologist reports, are unknown in monkeyland.

Rugged individualism is the standard there, Prof. D. L. Wolfel of the University of Mississippi, told the Midwestern Psychological Association.

Monkeys have no sense of co-operation, the professor said he determined in a series of experiments.

Wolfel said he placed two monkeys in cages side by side. In front of the cages was a long lever mounted on a platform corresponding in length to the combined length of the cages.

The apparatus was so arranged that the monkey in Cage A could pull a chain and move the lever so it could carry a cup of food to the monkey in Cage B. On the opposite side of the cages, another lever could be manipulated by the monkey in Cage B to feed the monkey in Cage A.

All the monkeys—four pairs were used in 24 tests daily for more than a month—pulled the lever when there was food in the cup. They pulled just as regularly when the cup was empty.

Then a screen was placed between the cup and the monkey who did the pulling. The monkey in the other cage, able to see the food which was shielded from its partner, evidenced excitement to which monkey No. 1 paid no attention.

Next one monkey was removed from his cage. His partner pulled food into the empty cage as readily as when it was occupied. Wolfel said his results proved the fallacy of legends of co-operation among animals.

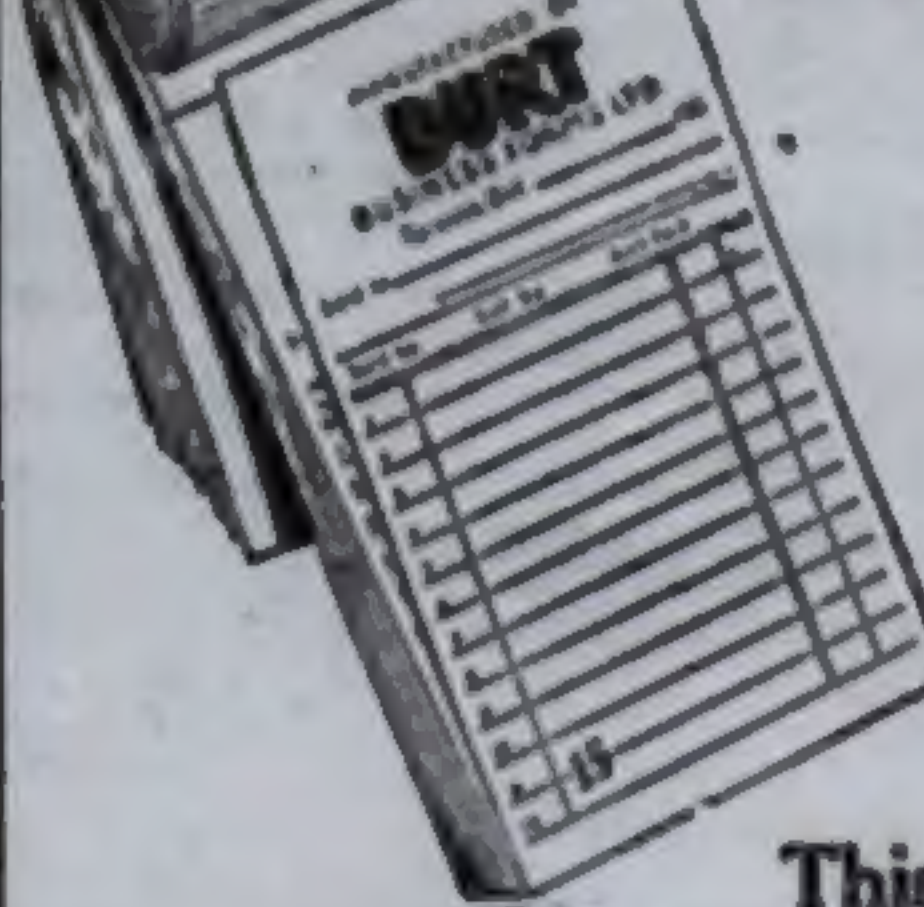

Quebec Again Refuses Grant Women Votes

QUEBEC.—For the 11th consecutive year, the women's suffrage bill was defeated in the Quebec Legislature recently by a vote of 43 to 24. — AWAY BACK WHEN —

To Mr. Hewitt's generosity, the 64th Regiment band became a subject when he presented them, some years ago with a complete set of the finest brass instruments that could be procured and at a late date he again became their benefactor by presenting them with a complete outfit of uniforms.

The late Mr. Hewitt held large real estate blocks, not only in Grimsby, North Grimsby, but in other parts of the County of Lincoln, and in the cities of Hamilton and Brantford.

Mr. Hewitt was a man of most likable disposition being quiet and unassuming and without any ostentation; living a very plain and quiet life. He was most highly esteemed by those who knew him best.

In business matters, Mr. Hewitt was a man of remarkably quick decisive quality, deciding almost instantly on matters of business, whether large or small, and acting without delay. Although he became a millionaire yet his business career was a most chequered one and up to the time that he became interested in the Michie Company, in 1905, he had engaged in a great many lines of business, and even after he assumed control of the Michie Company he still held heavy financial interests in other manufacturing concerns and big real estate deals.

Mr. Hewitt had been married twice; first in his early youth to Miss Fannie Harvey of Columbus, Ohio, who died about three years after their marriage; and he was married the second time to Miss McIntosh of Chicago, but formerly of Hamilton, Ont., and she predeceased him by about eight years.

New Provincial Game
Reserve In Waterloo Tp.
Contains 3,600 Acres

The new provincial game reserve in Waterloo township will contain close to 3,600 acres of land, it was stated by J. McCortney of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries this week. The reserve has been laid out by request of the North Waterloo Game and Fish Protective Association. Hunting and trapping will be illegal in this reserve, but fishing will be permitted.

The new protective area will be four miles long and three miles wide, and will extend from the Kitchener east city limits as far south as Doon. It will likely be named the "Memorial Crown Game Reserve", the official name, since the pioneer memorial tower on the banks of the Grand River near Doon will be included. Villages which will be in the area are German Mills, Doon, Prescott, Sunnyside and Centreville.

A full time game warden for the county has been appointed by the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries, and commenced his duties some time ago. The new warden indicated that his drive will be along educational rather than punitive measures. Many persons are breaking the law, not intentionally, but through ignorance, he said.

CANADIANS MAKE MORE TELEPHONE CALLS
THAN ANY OTHER PEOPLE

With 7.34 per 100 population in communities of less than 50,000 population, this Dominion is led by New Zealand with 6.95 and by the United States with 6.62 telephones in these less populated areas.

On the basis of development throughout the whole population, United States is first with 13.36 telephones per hundred people, Canada second with 11.06 followed by Denmark, 10.31, New Zealand, 10.30, Sweden, 9.90; and Switzerland, 9.25. Great Britain comes tenth, with 8.04.

These latest statistics make it clear that Canadians continue, as they have done for many years, to place a very high value upon their telephones as indicated in the fact of their being the world's leaders in the use of the service.
